off the menu card because it is more expensive to purchase than oatmeal and they therefore undertake to put the guest off with the oatmeal at the breakfast.

But if the guest insists on having Grape-Nuts and good rich cream being served, it will be forthcoming. For almost without exception it is kept in the kitchen of every hotel and restaurant ready for particular guests.

When it comes to your table, see that the food is dry, crisp, and brittle. If not, send it back to be dried out in the oven. It has a delicious, delicate, sweet taste, when crisp, but loses some of its flavour when exposed to a damp air, where it absorbs moisture. This does not detract from the wonderful nutritive qualities of Grape-Nuts, but does rob it of part of the delicious flavour.

You can have a choice breakfast dish by insisting.
